

Live-Work/We Love It!

By Sinead Vilbar, Curator, Japanese & Korean Art, Cleveland Museum of Art

The main reason we chose to live in the 1400 Building on East 30th Street was the promise of a community of people who are also active in creative fields--and Dan and I have not been disappointed.

We enjoy our time with our neighbors and having the Sterling Rec Center down the block, as well as being walking distance to Asia Plaza and decent Korean food and pho.

In the eight months we have been here, we've both been busy getting settled, and doing our jobs, so we haven't had much time to explore, but that makes being in a building with people we like all the more gratifying--everybody gives us great ideas for things to do when we finally get the chance to get out and around more, and having people over to our place just to talk and share ideas and stories has been wonderful.

We have enjoyed driving down by the lake to watch people fish and see the geese, going to the market at Ohio City, and being only a 3-hour drive from family in Buffalo.

We've also checked out Transformer Station, and of course I spend lots of time in the galleries at CMA. This past winter was pretty rough, but the summer has been spectacular. SV

I am having a hard time finding a live/work space I envision for myself. I am a sculptor/ graphic designer.

I imagine an old warehouse space with an open floor and huge industrial windows, exposed brick and duct work - I do not mind having to rehab on my own. I have two dogs so I will need a pet- friendly place. I can afford $900/month Can you help me find my home- studio?

Thank you for helping artists thrive in Cleveland! Megan Shalala
